

“Good *ing evening Birmingham!”

The true test of event management comes when the unexpected happens. Slap bang in the middle of proceedings. So when the band that a client had booked for a recent evening turned out to be, ahem, less than appropriate, we had to think on our feet. Luckily, that's what we're paid to do. One of our technicians is a part time DJ and stepped into the breach with the minimum of disruption – much to our client's relief. Music to our ears.
